Grain Program Offers 'Season' For Revising Diversion Plans

The signup for the 1965 feed grain program, which extends through March 26, offers winter wheat growers an "open season" for changing their intended participation in the 1965 wheat program, J. A. Martin, Chairman, Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today. The signup period now under way is primarily for growers of corn, barley, and grain sorghum to enroll under the 1965 feed grain diversion program.

In Virginia, the wheat program signup was conducted last fall. At that time it was announced that growers who signed up then would have an opportunity to revise their intended participation during the feed grain signup period this spring. Wheat growers who signed up last fall now may revise the number of acres to be diverted or may rescind the agreement. March 26 will be the last day for filing revised intentions for taking part in the 1965 wheat and feed grain diversion programs.

The Chairman reminded farmers that the program's substitution provision is available only if the participating growers are signed up in both the feed grain and the wheat program. This provision enables growers to substitute wheat for feed grains or feed grains for wheat in qualifying for diversion payments, there by providing program participants greater flexibility in farming operations. In this case, the rate of the available deversion payment would be based on the crop actually diverted into a conserving use.

Farmers who sign up and then meet provisions of the feed grain program may qualify for diversion payment, price - support loan, and price - support payments on the normal yield of the diverted acres. The wheat program offers participating farmers diversion paym e nts, price - support loans, and domestic and export certificates (with a cash value) for as much as 80 percent of the normal production of the allotment, provided it is planted.

Senator Byrd To Attend Centennial

U. S. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., expects to attend the Centennial Commemoration at Appomattox, according to W. A. Hubbard, Jr., chairman of the Appomattox County Centennial Commission.

Hubbard said he talked with Senator Byrd by telephone and that he promised to attend, if at all possible.

Civil War novelist Bruce Catton will give the commemorative address on the 100th anniversary of the surrender of General Robert E. Lee.

Ceremonies will be held at the restored village of Appomattox Court House three miles east of here on April 9 at 2 p.m.

Sponsoring the event will be the Virginia Civil War Commission, the National Park Service and the Appomattox Civil War Centennial Committee.

John Warren Cooke, chairman of the Virginia Commission, said all three agencies desired a program of simple dignity. He said he thought Catton was an ideal choice for the occasion because of his sensitive feeling for the soldiers on both sides of the conflict.

Catton achieved national recognition with his best-selling "A Stillness at Appomattox." He is editor of American Heritage Magazine and a member of the United States Civil War Centennial Commission.

The ceremonies will be held in front of the recently reconstructed court house from which the village gets its name. It will be dedicated by the National Park Service immediately following Mr. Catton's address. The United States Marine Band from Quantico will provide music for the occasion.

"This year we will hold 'open house'" in the department of vocational agriculture", reported Bobby Bollinger, chairman of the banquet committee.

In other business conducted by the chapter at its regular meeting on Thursday, plans were made for attending FFA-FHA camp. 4 P. M. Burning Law Now In Effect

The 4 p.m. Burning Law is in effect, says the Virginia Division of Forestry's Farmville District Office.

The law requires that brush, trash, leaves or any other material can be burned only between the hours of 4 p.m. and 12 midnight, if the fire is in, or within 300 feet of forestland, brushland or any other inflammable material.

Foresters urge that the law be observed to lessen the chance of fire escaping in a dangerous time of year. The law is in effect until May 15.

Forestry personnel caution that many fires escape from burning after 4 p.m. on dry windy days. They ask that if its dry and windy, don't burn at all; wait for another day." Fires should be completely extinguished before they are left to prevent their escape. Fires quite often escape a day or two after the burning, say foresters. To be safe, burn after 4 p.m., put the fire out cold by 12 midnight, check it the next morning and any day that is windy and dry, don't burn at all; even after 4 p.m.

Care, and good judgement can prevent forest fires, and foresters urge extreme caution during the coming spring months.

To Cut Ribbon At Court House

Another Grant and another Lee, direct descendants of the principals of 100 years ago will participate here April 9 in the commemoration of the centennial anniversary of General Robert E. Lee's surrender.

A joint announcement was made Saturday by the Virginia Civil War Commission, the National Park Service, and the Appomattox Civil War Centennial Committee.

Major Gen. U. S. Grant, III of New York and Robert E. Lee IV of San Francisco will cut the ribbon dedicating the newly reconstructed courthouse as part of the ceremonies.

It will be the second time the two men have been together at Appomattox. They were present for the dedication of the reconstructed McLean House, where the surrender took place, in 1950. Thirty thousand persons jammed the area at that time to see them and Mrs. the late Douglas Southall Freeman, General Lees biographer, deliver the main address.

The present General Grant is the grandson of the man who gave such magnanimous terms to General Lee on that fateful Palm Sunday in 1865. He was chairman of the United States Civil War Centennial Commission for several years.

Lee, a native of New York, was raised in Alexandria and graduated Washington and Lee University. He is national advertising manager for the San Francisco Chronicle. He is the great grandson of the renowned Confederate leader. He came to Richmond in 1961 as the guest of the Virginia Civil War Commission to participate in activities opening the Centennial. Virginia, which were in the name of his famous forebear.

Civil war historian Bruce Catton will make principal address at the 10th anniversary exercises. The United States Marine Band from Quantico will provide music and there will be honors of the military. Reserved stored to much lie original appearance.

Lee's surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia here April 9, 1865, seven days after the fall of Petersburg and Richmond, marked the end of the Civil War although there were still armies in the field, for all intents and purposes the big struggle was over.

Two Young Men Lose Lives

A one - car accident took the lives of two area men early Sunday on Rt. 727, one mile north of Red House in Charlotte County, pushing Virginia's highway toll for the year to 130.

The two victims were the only occupants of the car.

According to State Trooper C R. Wilmore, the dead were Ralph R. May, Jr., 20 of Rt. 1, Brookneal, the driver of the car and Wilbur Clayton Fleshman, 22, of Rt. 1, Appomattox, a passenger.

May, employed by the Virginia Gear & Machine Corp. in Lynchburg, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. Fleshman an employe of Babcock & Wilcox Co., was dead on arrival at Lynchburg General Hospital.

Both men were married. May was the father of a six-months old son, and Fleshman was the father of a daughter, one year old. Fleshman's widow expects a second child in August.

Trooper Wilmore said that May's 1965 sports-type car was traveling north when it went out of control, left the road and struck a tree. Time of the accident was placed at 12:35 a.m.

The demolished vehicle, which was brought to Appomattox following the tragedy, drew crowds through the day, Sunday.

The mishap occurred near the Appomattox - Charlotte County line, 11 miles south of Appomattox.

Wilmore described the highway as straight, level and dry at the time of the accident.

Including Rocking Rebels

Music For Everyone On April 9

The Rocking Rebels, dance band group from Appomattox High School, are among the talented local artists who are planning to appear here on Friday, April 9, when the Appomattox Civic Chorus presents "Music of the Blue and Grey."

Lisa Trent will do an original twirling routine, the Rhythm Lynchburg will be here, as well as Allen Brown, Drector of Church Music, Baptist General Association of Virginia, and a special welcome to distinguished visitor from Representative Watkins M. Abbitt.

Others are giving their "OK" to be on the program, and Civic Chorus president Horace Folks says that response to the idea of the program has been heartwarming. Folks say there has been some confusion as to the starting of Civil War Period dress. He says that this is strictly optional — and that everyone is welcome to come, whether costumed or not. There'll be dancing by audience and chorus and a sparkling "Dixie" finale to make it an evening well worth remembering.
